An Unusual Bruise on the Face of a 20-month-old Boy

November 02, 2015
By Jonathan A. Schneider, DO [1]

Test your visual diagnostic skills with this slide-show case of a young boy with an odd facial lesion of approximately one month's duration.

The 20-month-old was playing on his own and accidentally struck the side of his face against a toy chest.

Take a close look at the resulting lump. Is there anything about the lesion that would cause you to suspect a malignancy? What would be in your differential diagnosis for lumps and bumps in childhood?

Follow the case in the slides above, provided by Dr. Jonathan Schneider, and put your visual diagnostic skills to the test.

References:
Suggested Reading

Source URL:
http://www.physicianspractice.com/skin-diseases/unusual-bruise-face-20-month-old-boy

Links: