A Teenager with Multiple Moles

May 06, 2016
By Jonathan A. Schneider, DO [1]

A teen athlete comes in for his preseason physical. Everything looks good until he lifts up his shirt.

The 16-year-old basketball player appears healthy and the past medical history reveals nothing to the contrary. What is revealing is the sight of the adolescent's torso when he raises his shirt for physical examination. Follow Dr Jonathan Schneider's new case in the slides above. What's your diagnosis?

References:

Source URL: http://www.physicianspractice.com/skin-diseases/teenager-multiple-moles

Links: